

DIG "MOVIE" ROCK OBSTRUCTS YORK'S ROAD TO FORTUNE

Heroic Sergeant's Cinema
Plans Are Muddled by a Kinogram Picture.

Obstacles have been found in the road to the $2,000 a day over which the friends of Sergt. Alvin C. York, A. E. F., slayer of more than a score of Germans and captor of more than 100 prisoners, hope to guide him.

A. Kellogg, secretary to Sergt. Alvin C. York, has written The Evening World, inclosing two letters addressed to the Kineto Film Company, No. 71 West 23d Street, and the Rialto Theatre, 43d and Broadway, demanding that the company and theatre discontinue the exhibition of a film showing Sergt. York landing from the steamship Ohioan and his family in Fall Mail, Tenn. Also inclosed was a scenario of what the York film shows.

Mr. Kellogg in his letter to The Evening World asks: "Have we found some men in America who would want to steal from the Nation's greatest hero?"

"Don't everybody know that Sergt. York is a very poor boy, and he has hopes of producing a dignified historic moving picture that he will own 100 per cent. of?"

"Will the press of the first city in America expose this dirty work?"

and add: "The lawyers who dictated the letters to the theatre and picture company, I assure you, are some of the largest in New York and they did not receive any fee."

FILM AND THEATRE PRODUCERS WILL NOT STOP PICTURE.
Neither R. L. Hall of the Kinogram Film Company, No. 71 West 23d Street, which made the film, nor Hugo Riesenfeld, manager of the Rialto Theatre, will take any action in answer to the demand that the film be discontinued.

Mr. Hall says that before Sergt. York arrived in this country and immediately after the publication of the story of his exploit in France in a weekly periodical, he thought that the American people would like to know the sort of folk Sergt. York came from. He sent Tracy Mathewson, motion picture camera man, to Fall Mail, Tenn., from Atlanta. When York arrived in New York on the Ohioan, the Kinogram photographer took scenes of him and the members of the Tennessee Society who greeted him and released the complete film to the World Film Company.

No objection was made by Sergt. York to the taking of his picture at the dock, and the picture itself will reveal this, said Mr. Hall. The sergeant's family did not object to posing and in fact welcomed the opportunity, he said. Mr. Hall called Mathewson into his office and there Mathewson told of his visit to Fall Mail.

"I called upon Rev. R. C. Pile, pastor of the Church of Christ and Christian Union, to which York belonged. Mr. Pile welcomed me cordially. He is one of the prominent citizens of the community, conducts two stores and is the postmaster of the valley. Mr. Pile guided me himself, riding horseback alongside of my buggy, to the Deik School house where a May meeting was being held and I photographed the people there. Later, guided by Joseph York, the sergeant's elder brother and a younger brother, I went to Possum Trot Church where a big sing was in progress. I shot the meeting, too."

"After making this film I went to Coonrod (pronounced Conrod) Pile, the home of the Yorks, which was built by York's great, great grandfather, and was received cordially by the sergeant's mother and I filmed the entire family."

"It was Dr. Pile who told me about Miss Grace Williams, the girl who had received a lot of letters from Sergt. York. I asked her if she was going to marry the sergeant. She replied: 'I reckon I will, I'm getting a lot of letters from him.'"

"Mrs. York also mentioned the probable marriage of her son and Miss Williams. I was treated generously and cordially, and there could have been no coercion on my part."

"We try to do news reels differently," spoke up Mr. Hall, "try to hook up a news incident with a feature. I assigned Mathewson to Fall Mail, even though it was a very costly trip, because I believed that the American people would like to know just what were York's circumstances and how his people looked down in Tennessee.

RIESENFELD SEES NO REASON FOR CUTTING HIS PROGRAMME.
"Certainly nothing in the film is objectionable. It will be shown to almost five million people and I would consider it most helpful publicity for any person desiring publicity. We filmed the members of the Tennessee Society at the dock and showed Mr. Kellogg in the film. My reports from the camera man are that there was no objection whatever to filming either York or his hosts by them."

"I will take no action concerning the demand of Sergt. York's secretary, Mr. Kellogg. We made the film and the World Film Co. distributes it to the theatre."

Manager Riesenfeld of the Rialto Theatre said there was nothing he could do about it. The film was made and it had been shown in many other theatres in New York City as well as the Rialto. He said he could see no reason why he should take it out of his programme until the end of its run. Jack La Rosa who is in charge of the projection room at the Rialto, said that three other news film services had carried the picture of York's arrival. The Kinogram's added feature of Fall Mail made that film the more desirable and it was therefore placed on the Rialto programme, he said.

The Kineto Company of America to whom Mr. Kellogg addressed his letter had nothing to do with the making of the film. It is a Kinogram production entirely. Mr. Hall made plain in his interview. The Kineto and Kinogram companies occupy the same suite of offices.

The letter to the theatre and film company is signed "Sergeant Alvin C. York, per E. A. Kellogg, Sec'y."

FINDER OF MAIL BOMBS PROMOTED AS REWARD

Charles Kaplan is Made Foreman of Parcel Post Section of Main Office Here.

As a reward for his intelligence and initiative in warning the Post Office authorities that the mysterious packages held for postage probably contained bombs, Charles Kaplan has been promoted from night clerk to foreman of the parcel post section at the main Post Office. He is already in his new position. It was said to-day. His old salary was $1,600 and the new is $1,600 a year.

Kaplan is twenty-nine, married and lives at No. 745 East 134th Street. Going home from work in the subway early on May 1, he read in an early edition of a newspaper a description of the bomb received at the home of former Senator Hardwick in Atlanta. He remembered that several packages exactly like the one described in the story had been put aside at the main Post Office here because the postage was insufficient.

Kaplan left the train, sped back to the office and told of his suspicions. The packages were turned over to the police. Sure enough, each contained a bomb.

Opponents of Change Will Be Consulted, as House Committee Has Hearing Monday.

WASHINGTON, May 31.—Leaders in Congress are opposed to taking snap judgment on the repeal of the Daylight Saving Law. A further halt of its opponents came yesterday when the House Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce voted to hold hearings next Monday. The United States Chamber of Commerce and business organizations of New York, Boston and other cities will then have a chance to explain why the law should not be repealed. Senator Calder has asked for an opportunity to appear before the committee. Sentiment in the House is changing in favor of acting safely on the matter and the Senate wants a careful study of the effects that would follow

MITCHELL WARNS ALL EMPLOYERS TO INSURE WORKMEN

Failure to Comply With Law
May Mean Ruin to Small Employers.

A warning was issued from Albany to-day by Chairman Mitchell of the State Industrial Commission that employers who failed to comply with the Workmen's Compensation Law by guaranteeing insurance to their workers were in danger of criminal prosecution.

"This law has been in force for almost five years," he said, "and neglect is inexcusable. An employer subject to the law, may insure in one of four ways—in the State Fund, in an insurance company, in a mutual, or (if he satisfies the Commission of his financial responsibility and deposits), he may be permitted to become a self insurer."

"An employer who fails to insure is not only subject to civil penalties but is guilty of a misdemeanor. The maximum punishment is a fine of five hundred dollars or imprisonment for one year, or both."

"Every week we have cases of awards which cannot be collected, because the employer failed to carry insurance and is unable to meet the payments himself. Many of these cases involve great hardship to widows and orphans."

"Ignorance of the law is no excuse. Every uninsured employer should communicate with the Industrial Commission and find out just what his responsibilities are. It is usually the small employer who fails to do this, and it is he, above all, who should carry the proper insurance. A severe accident in his plant means his financial ruin; whereas, he could have protected himself and his injured workers by paying small annual premiums."

"The commission is determined to remedy this condition. We hope that employers will comply with the law voluntarily, but if it becomes necessary we shall not hesitate to commence criminal proceedings against them."

BAFF CASE UP AGAIN.

Swann to Submit New Evidence Regarding Joseph Cohen.

District Attorney Swann will submit evidence to the June Grand Jury, which will be empaneled Monday by Judge Wadhams, tending to prove that false affidavits and testimony were presented at the trial of Joseph Cohen, convicted of killing Barnett Bass, the Washington Market poultry merchant, Nov. 24, 1914. Cohen is now in Sing Sing, where the respite given him by Gov. Smith expires June 17. John Goldstein, attorney for the convicted slayer, will petition the Governor for a further extension of time.
